DYSPEPSIA.

IS that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.
Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,
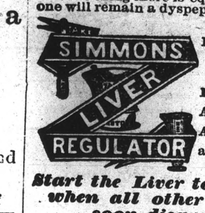
The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will



It will correct Acidity of the Stomach, Expel foul gases, Allay Irritation, Assist Digestion, and, at the same time
Start the Liver to working, when all other troubles soon disappear.

"My wife was a confirmed dyspeptic. Some three years ago by the advice of Dr. Steiner, of Augusta, she was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I feel grateful for the relief it has given her, and may all who read this and are afflicted in any way, whether chronic or otherwise, use Simmons Liver Regulator and I feel confident health will be restored to all who will be advised."—WM. PIANOS.

GAINED FIRST PREMIUM FOR GREATEST merit at the New Orleans Cotton Centennial and WORLE'S Exposition for refined and wonderful power of tone, elegance of design, and superb finish. Only piano endorsed by United States commissioners, from each of the States. Cases finest carved, rosewood finish—finest imported double repeating action—three strings throughout of best patent steel wire—keys best ivory. Our new patent steel tuning device, instead of wood, is the greatest invention ever made in pianos. It consists of stationary STEEL tuning pins that are set in a mold and molten STEEL is run round the pins keeping them solidly in place. A thimble or shell pin is made to exactly fit the stationary pin revolving therein: thus the strings wind round the pins. After the strings are properly stretched the piano can never get out of tune, the rest plank being of STEEL not affected by extremes of climate. This will be appreciated by all musicians in city or country. It will stand twenty years without tuning and is good for 100. No other piano has this improvement.
Great strength and durability is another advantage. In other pianos holes are bored in wooden boards and tuning pins inserted. The pins turn round in this board and cannot stand permanently in tune, and it often cracks, splits, drys out, becoming utterly, totally and entirely worthless as a musical instrument. Our STEEL tuning device is in no way affected by such casualities, and the sounding board is so constructed that our pianos can never become thin or metallic in tone. They are always in tune and the expense of tunning is saved This patent alone is worth millions and makes our piano the greatest in the world. Prices are no higher than other pianos. Buying direct from us, the largest manufacturers, you save $100 or $200—dealers' profits. Don't mind the ominous growlings of dealers and agents, who see their chances of selling a poor piano at a big profit of $200—slipping away—pity them.
We guarantee our pianos ten years. 200 styles. We have put our prices at lowest bed-rock for Cash.

A $600 Piano for $259.50 ; a $900 Piano for $297 50 ; a $1200 Piano for $375.50 ; a $1500 Piano for $475.50.

Upright Cabinet Grands, with stool and rubber cover shipped on board cars at S. F., to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. Our terms are cash with order. If not as represented money returned. We occassionally have good second-hand pianos, made over at $100 to $300, which we take in part payment for our own. Write or call for catalogue, free.

A FOOLISH WISH.

Why need I seek some burden small to bear
Before I go?
Will not a host of nobler souls be there
Heaven's will to do?
Of stronger hands, unfailing, unafraid?
Oh, silly soul! what matters my small aid
Before I go?

I tried to find, that I might show to them,
Before I go,
The path of purer lives; the light was dim—
I do not know
If I had found some footprints of the way;
It is too late their wandering feet to stay
Before I go.

I would have sung the rest some song of cheer
Before I go;
But still the chords ring false; some jar of fear,
Some jangling woe;
And at the end I cannot weave one chord
To float into their hearts my last warm word,
Before I go.

I would be satisfied if I might tell,
Before I go,
That one warm word—how I have loved them well,
Could they but know!
And would have gained for them some gleam of good!
Have sought it long; still seek—if but I could
Before I go!

'Tis a child's longing on the beach at play:
"Before I go."
He begs the beckoning mother, "Let me stay
One shell to throw!"
'Tis coming night: the great sea climbs the shore;
'Oh, let me toss one little pebble more
Before I go!"
—Edward Rowland Hill in Washington Post.

PINK'S LAST ILLUSION.

"It is, I suppose, as likely to come to anything as your previous—fascinations. You are certainly an odd person, James."

"Oh, no, Maria; this is quite different. I assure you I have learned caution with experience; and if the world has taught no other lesson, it has taught me that the eyes of a man are really the least trustworthy of the faculties with which he has been endowed."

"What nonsense! As if you are ever likely to come to such a pitch of wisdom. Why, it was but last year, at Oban, you remember, that you fell in love with a woman who was a grandmother over and over again. She tricked you as easily as if you had been a babe, what with her paint and powder, false hair and false teeth. And I can't say you did yourself credit when you vowed to me that you were about to offer your hand and what may remain of your heart to a person who proved to be two-thirds bereft of her wits. I don't know which county asylum she now resides in, but I dare say you know; and, indeed, knowing you as I do, it really would not surprise me to be told that you were still in correspondence with her. There's one thing: the letters on either side would have about an equal share of sense in them."

"You are too monstrous, Maria, to go on in that way," protested James.

"And now," continued his sister, "you come with a fresh story about a siren sitting somewhere at the receipt of custom, with the loveliest complexion you ever beheld, and a demeanor the perfection of modesty, simplicity and grace. A deal you know about complexions; though I warrant, if it is given to men to know the qualities they most excel in, you ought to be a remarkable judge of the creature's simplicity."

It was in this way. James Pink, who was a country lawyer under no obligation to work for a livelihood, passed three or four months of each year of his life in traveling about the world. During his travels he periodically fell in love. He was accompanied by his sister, Maria, a lady of 45 to 50, who sympathized with none of her brother's tastes. Least of all was she by nature disposed to view charitably his love fancies. In fact, they caused her intense irritation. Why this should have been so we cannot tell. But the truth was that no sooner did her brother begin, timidly enough, one or other of his stories about a new impression made upon his heart, than she was wont to toss her head and otherwise manifest a little temper, blamable in a girl of 12 or 13, but very singular in a woman of mature age.

Upon this occasion they were at Naples. It was spring, and Easter. They had viewed with complacence the pet lambs which the Neapolitan children are wont to lead about the streets during the latter days of Lent, fattening them upon grass, cabbage leaves or what not, in readiness for the butcher's knife on Easter eve. Neither the one nor the other of them had grown at all cosmopolitan in the course of their ten or twelve years' travel upon the Continent. Each regarded with horror those customs of a country which differed from the customs of their own small village in the north of England.

"They do not do that sort of thing in Carsforth," was with James or Maria Pink a common sort of condemnation, indicative of the extreme of dispraise.

If either of them was disposed to be at all liberal in his or her estimate of a world which differed from Carsforth, it was James Pink. But he was cautious to keep his opinions to himself.

Thus they had driven to and fro in Naples, with their eyes fixed upon the smoke of Vesuvius when Vesuvius was in sight, and at other times with expressions of pain upon their honest faces as they remarked the grime and filth which accompany the color and vivacity of Neapolitan life. Maria Pink on these occasions journeyed with a small golden smelling bottle in her hand; and however picturesque was this or that grouping of lads or lasses, ragged men and ragged women, upon the hot pavement of Santa Lucia, which she was requested by the car driver to look upon, she never so far forgot herself as to omit to use her salts while she inspected through her glasses the details of the curious scene.

"For any sake, don't let us stay here," she would remark to her brother. "There's typhus in the air upon this spot, if typhus exists anywhere."

Imagine, then, this poor lady's disquietude when one morning her brother announced to her, with sufficient timidity and humility, indeed, that he was enamored afresh—this time of a woman resident in the city which appalled her so much from a social aspect.

The declaration was made while they were at breakfast in the Hotel Vesuve.

"I tell you what, James; I think we had better go to Capri at once. I find Naples quite oppressively hot. We will take the boat to-morrow morning." She said this as though her suggestion were a decision which could not be contested.

Her brother, however, was equal to the situation. "It would be inconvenient for me, dear Maria, just at present. Next week would be much better. Then I should be able to place myself entirely at your disposal."

For reply, Miss Pink rose from the table, and walked out of the breakfast room.

Left alone, James Pink showed none of the depression of the man who is in chains to his wife, and who has just had a new bond of pain set upon him. He watched his sister depart as if she was somebody else's sister, and not his Maria. Then, with the same look of elation which had perplexed and disturbed Miss Pink, he challenged the room to convict him of aught akin to misery. Moreover, he called for the waiter, and gave certain orders about the evening's dinner in a tone of resolution that raised him tenfold in the waiter's esteem, and altered the opinion which the other guests in the hotel had casually formed about him.

Nor was this the limit of his metamorphosis. He asked for cigarettes—a pernicious invention which hitherto he had been content to execrate. And, having allowed the waiter to light one for him, while he held it in his mouth, he left the room with—of course speaking in metaphor—banners flying.

Miss Pink was stupefied to see her brother pass into the hall of the hotel smoking a cigarette. She had left the door of the ladies' room open on purpose that she might estimate exactly the acuteness of the suffering she had caused James by the manifestation of her displeasure: that she might see him in his despondency as soon as possible, and perhaps, there and then, make proposals for reconciliation. And this was what met her eyes. But ere she could recover her equanimity her brother had disappeared. A whiff of smoke was all that remained of him. It was very delicate, aromatic smoke; but did that make the sin any the less flagrant?

In the meantime, James Pink was walking towards the city.

It was marvelous to see with what skill this man, ordinarily the perfection of clumsiness, found a safe path between the noses of the horses of the different cars which, at the crossing by the palace and the Theatre San Carlo, hotly competed for his patronage. And it was equally wonderful that he could go at the pace he did, with so hot a sun in the heavens. But, in truth, James Pink had that within him which made him indifferent to externals. There was a fair portrait in his mind, which attracted all his energies, mental and physical, as a loadstone gathers to itself environing shreds of steel. And the god Cupid, who generally knows what he is about, though some hold him to be blind, protected him through all the dangers which encompassed him.

Where the road widened into a spacious public square, the lawyer abruptly turned west and left it. The sea was again before him, blue and radiant. Beyond was the white fringe of the myriad of houses which bind the Bay of Naples like a snowy marge of sand. And over the houses swelled Vesuvius, clear and entrancing on this bright day, methodically puffing its smoke toward the purple shadow of the island of Capri, a light sketch on the horizon. Closer at hand was to be seen the conventional furniture of a busy port; a maze of masts, with here and there a red or a black funnel in their midst, and a multitude of men and boys lounging against walls and railings, and the stout columns of granite sunk in the piers as conventional tether for the harbor craft. There was uproar enough, in all conscience. All ports are noisy; but the tumult of the port of Naples may be called transcendent.

A hundred yards or so from the gate of the port there was a little white marble seat under a tree. The seat commanded a view of a low building, of a temporary kind, erected between it and the bay. In the doorway of this building an orchestral organ was to be seen, and from the colored posters outside it was evident that here was a show of a kind to be found alike in the cities of Europe and Timbuctoo. It was, in fact, a circus. From the organ loud harmonies proceeded forth upon the charmed air, and voluble were the rapturous comments of the Neapolitans who enjoyed this gratuitous diversion. The organ was not automatic. A long handle was turned with untiring energy by a woman fit to extort admiration from a traveler to whom no type of beauty is unknown. Such symmetry, lissomeness and grace of movement! Long black hair, large unblinking eyes, worthy of the land they looked upon. The most bewitching complexion in the world. Teeth, mouth, nose, brow and chin all conceived by nature as if she had worked by the light of the Book of Beauty.

James Pink sat on the marble seat and contemplated this lovely creature. Middle aged man that he was, his heart beat as if it were disordered. You would have said he had a touch of palsy, if you could have seen the twitching of his mouth and fingers. And he winked again and again, as if the sun were in his eyes instead of held at a distance by the tree above him. After a time, our hero rose reluctantly, sighed, wiped his face with his silk pocket handkerchief and departed. He knew better than to shatter or risk the shatterment of his ideal by an interview, until he was well prepared for the consequences, might they be ever so disastrous. But he was not, therefore, the less liberal in his praise. He lauded her loveliness and her figure until he was again at the portal of the Hotel Vesuve.

It was really absurd to mark Miss Pink's conduct towards her brother During the remainder of that day. She was supercilious, deferential, tender and commanding, each in succession. But all her moods were powerless to affect her brother. He was as little moved by them as if he had been a rock. His robe was strong and decided when he replied to her questions. And, moreover, Miss Pink was exasperated to find that he was sufficiently changed to be able to treat her with a certain amount of condescension. In effect her brother behaved towards her as a political minister might behave to a small suitor who pestered him with demands in the midst of his business, but who had a certain claim upon him for civil treatment which he might not repudiate.

"I can bear this no longer, James," said Maria in the evening, after dinner. She felt some terror lest her brother should go off again with a cigarette in his mouth. Had he repeated this iniquity, she was resolved to cause a scene, in public or private, it did not matter which. But no. With an air of philosophic abstraction that proclaimed his peace of mind, he had followed contentedly at her heels when she had left the table to retire to their private sitting room. She had thus the less cause for complaint. Yet she was too aggrieved to perceive this.

"What cannot you bear, Maria? Is not the service of the hotel good enough for you?"

"The service of the fiddlestick! You know that I am concerned about a very different matter. It is your own welfare, James, that is at stake, and heaven knows I have not watched over you from time to time you were a helpless little baby—I mean, of course, when we were babies together—I say I have not been for twenty years in the position of affection towards you, without acquiring a strict and conscientious estimate of my responsibility."

"Yes, yes," observed James Pink, as if he were, from a sense of duty, encouraging a diffident client to unbosom himself of his troubles.

"Be silent, James—with your yes, yeses," exclaimed Miss Pink. "I will not be interrupted! Who is she, I say? Tell me at once where I may find the creature, and put an end to the tragedy; for it is tragic, indeed, in its effect upon your heart, James, which I had come to regard as soft, tender and humane."

"Maria," said James Pink, benignly, when his sister paused, "I do not admit that there is reason in your plea; but let that pass. The attachment is of the purest, the most Platonic kind. I have never stood within twenty paces of—of this divine being"——

"And yet you are fool enough to suppose she is one of nature's beauties," observed Miss Pink.

"It is my turn to cry, 'Be silent!' Maria," replied James Pink. "It is trifling with the highest, the noblest of human sentiments, thus to cast cold water upon the blossoms of hope. You shall see her for yourself, sister. That will assuage your enmity, if anything will."

"I can quite believe it," said Miss Pink. "Nothing could please me more. The sooner the affair is ended, the sooner we shall return to our earlier and more comfortable condition as an affectionate brother and an affectionate sister, each anxious only to promote the other's happiness."

"Hum!" murmured the lawyer, stroking his chin, and with, for the moment, a recurrence of the light in his eyes.

"Go to bed, James," said Miss Pink, abruptly; "we have had enough excitement for one day."

Without another word, and with but a single kiss of salutation, James Pink took up a candle and went off to bed. He dreamed for eight hours of his fair one, and awoke the next morning still with exultation in his heart.

Miss Pink, on her part, sat and read for an hour and a half after she had wished her brother "Good night," and retired, confident that she had the reins of victory once again in her sinewy, firm hands.

"Well?" she said, when they sat opposite to each other at breakfast again. "I see, James, that you are still a little foolish. Let us get the illusion over without loss of time."

"The illusion, indeed," said James Pink, indignantly. "I am going there immediately after breakfast. If you choose you may accompany me."

"I ask for nothing better," remarked Miss Pink, with emphasis. She straightway left the room, and ere James had rid himself of the fears which came upon him with his sister's words of acquiescence in his impetuous proposal, she had returned, bonneted and gloved, and carrying in her hand a red parasol with a long stout stick. Humbly—for anxiety oppressed him and a sense of approaching evil—James Pink left the hotel with his sister. They walked in silence. Ere long the music of the distant orchestra was audible. James held his head up. "Be patient, Maria," he pleaded; "we are nearly there."

"I am glad to hear it," was her reply. "The sun is insufferable; and it is due to your absurdity that we are risking our lives beneath it."

"And so this is your innamorata!" remarked Miss Pink when, at James' invitation, she had seated herself on the marble bench.

"Yes, I confess it; and I am proud of the attachment. It ennobles me," said James.

Miss Pink put up her glasses, the better to view the action and countenance of the beautiful Italian; then she dropped them and looked at her brother in a manner he will never forget.

"You must allow me to break my promise," she said. She rose, approached the show, advanced into the vestibule where stood the orchestra, the woman who received the money, the siren of the music herself. Disregarding the outstretched hand of the one woman who demanded the entrance fee, Miss Pink stepped up to the other woman, examined her closely, touched her and turned away.

"You are certainly the most consummate fool on the face of the earth, James," she said frigidly, when she rejoined her brother, who had hurried after her. "You must take to spectacles; the creature is wax."—Chambers' Journal.

GENERAL VALLEJO'S WIDOW.

The late General Vallejo during his life-time was averse to accepting aid in consideration for valuable services rendered his adopted country in securing to the Union one of its brighest stars in the constellation of States. As is well known to the dead General's intimate friends whenever such a subject was broached or even hinted at his proud spirit would at once assert itself and in gentle but firm language he forbade any such a move.

But now the old General is dead! His proud spirit has winged its flight to those shores whence no earthly aid can reach him. His aged widow, however, survives him. In the quiet retreat of Lachryma Montis, this good old lady will never cease to mourn for him whose joys and sorrows, wealth and poverty, she had shared for sixty years.

When she came to Sonoma in 1831 she was a young and blushing bride, the favorite daughter of one of the richest and most influential families of Southern California. Her every wish was gratified, for General Vallejo's wealth was almost unbounded. But in time a change came over this contented and well-provided home. The gold excitement brought thousands of Americans to these shores, many of whom would have fallen by the way had it not been for General Vallejo and his wife, who gave liberally to all who applied to them for relief. To some farms were given, while others were aided with horses, cattle and money. The General also spent large sums in encouraging the building of towns and cities and promoting the settlement of the State after its admittance into the Union. Had it not been for him California might now be a dependency of Great Britain or France, as it is a matter of history that those powers were thwarted by General Vallejo in their scheming endeavor to seize the prize, to the end that it might be secured to the United States.

When all these things are taken into consideration and also the fact that Gen. Vallejo sacrificed his immense fortune for California, it would be no more than an act of gratitude on the part of the Government to provide liberally for the widow, who has been left nothing out of a once princely fortune, if we except a mortgaged home and an honored name.

In our last issue owing to an oversight we unintentionally omitted mentioning the fact that our esteemed contemporary, Allen B. Lemmon, of the Santa Rosa Republican had received the appointment of Supervisor of the Third Census District, in which Sonoma county is situated. In our estimation the President has made a very wise and judicious selection. Mr. Lemmon is in every way capable for the position.

Brother McNabb of the Petaluma Argus is an aspirant for the position of Postmaster of that city, and as such has received the endorsement of many of its leading business men. Mr. McNabb is in every sense deserving of the position and if the present incumbent has to go we say give the place to Mac by all means. The Petaluma Postoffice could not be in better hands.

The world-wide reputation of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the natural result of its surpassing value as a blood medicine. Nothing, in the whole pharmacopœia, effects more astounding results, in scrofula, rheumatism, general debility, and all forms of blood disease, than this medicine.

The Agua Caliente Springs Hotel, having been enlarged and refurnished, is again running under the old management and the proprietor will be pleased to see and entertain all his old friends and as many new ones as may favor him with call. *

POINTER FOR TAX-PAYERS.

What the Supervisors Propose Doing in the Matter of a Jail and Hall of Records.

Editor Index-Tribune: Your readers may not fully understand what the Supervisors have been doing and propose doing in the matter of a Jail and Hall of Records, and with your permission I will call their attention to the late action of that body by which they have ordered a sale of the county property known as the Hall of Records.

They propose to sell this valuable, commodious and secure building and erect another one on the site lately purchased for a jail lot. They do not pretend or claim that they can erect a more secure building. All they claim is that they can, with the money they get for the old lot and building, erect another equally as good. But it will be in an undesirable place, and you as tax-payers should by this time know what the result will be. It means another tax to pay the deficiency. Our Supervisors appear to think the county should speculate in real estate. They pretend to say they think they can sell the old lot and building for enough to pay for a new one and have money left. But we all know how such matters result. You never get as much for an old building as a new one will cost suitable for and that will answer the same purpose. The present Hall of Records is one of the most complete and secure buildings used for the purpose in the State. It cost the county a great deal of money and is absolutely fire proof, and while times are close and taxes oppressing the people, we think no new improvements should be undertaken by the county except such as are absolutely necessary, and this we all know is not necessary in any respect. It is high time something was being done to reduce instead of increasing the rate of taxation. The facts of the case are that the Board of Supervisors board with a certain hotel keeper who wants the property on the south-east corner of the Plaza in Santa Rosa improved and acting under inspiration from him and others the Supervisors some time since purchased a lot on the said corner for the purpose of erecting a jail thereon, although the iron was scarcely cold in the one now in use. They also levied and and collected a tax for the purpose of erecting the jail building, and when they came to let the contract for the new jail, some of the parties owning property in the vicinity of the lot waked up to the fact that a jail would be of no great advantage to their property and wishing simply to prevent a jail from being erected in the immediate vicinity of their property, made a fight against it, alleging that a lot 40x120 is not large enough for jail purposes and are making an effort to induce the Supervisors to abandon the erection of a jail on that lot and cause them to utilize the same by erecting thereon a new Hall of Records, which will necessitate the purchasing of another lot for the new jail, and this means another tax. The Supervisors have said that they will not sell the property in question if the people before the day of the sale by some expression show that they are opposed to the move, and if your people have not already done so, they should send in some protest and give the Supervisors to understand that the power of taxation should at least have some limit.

Glen Ellen, Feb. 6, 1890.

THE PRESS AND THAT JAIL SCHEME.

We are astonished at the delicate manner in which some of our county contemporaries handle the jail proposition. Some do not even deign to express an opinion at all, preferring to give their columns up to the discussion of foreign topics. The Healdsburg Enterprise, however, is an exception. That excellent paper says:

"We do not need a new County Jail or a new Hall of Records until we are able to pay for them without making paupers of our families. We want better roads and new bridges, and these we must have."

Now that is to the point exactly. The Petaluma Imprint also handles the question without gloves, in such a manner as to show that it has the good of the people at heart, and is not standing in with the "ring," when it says:

"The taxes of 1889 were unusually heavy and our tax-payers have been objecting to the idea of a new $40,000 jail when it is not absolutely necessary that it should be built. Forty thousand dollars is considerable money just now when our bridges have been carried away, our roads washed out and a general state of demoralization prevails throughout the county. Better let the new jail and hall of records wait a while and spend the money on our public highways."

The Petaluma Argus also hits the scheme a shot in an original manner in saying:

"The plastering had hardly got dry on the new court house and jail when the boomers asked for another jail at a cost of $40,000. The people took the matter so quietly and kindly that the same fellows propose to go them some better and have a new hall of records at the same time, costing $100,000, and probably more before they get through with the job. One hundred and forty thousand dollars would be a large slice of the dog's tail to cut off all at once, but then it would be mercy on the dog not to take the tail off by inches. It was 'Squibob' who said 'now that the treasury is full let's rake her!'"

Handling Young Trees.

It is of the greatest importance to handle trees properly which have been received from the nursery for setting in the orchard. It is not infrequently that the trees are several days and even weeks in transit, at which time they are often improperly cared for. The bark sometimes becomes shrunken and although the roots may be in tolerably good condition there is a great danger of a tree dying that is planted in this condition. There are several ways to handle trees when they are taken from the packages in which they have been shipped. The packages upon receipt should be taken to a shady, cool spot and opened. The trees, if plump and fresh, need no immediate care other than to place them in the trenches carefully. The earth should be well worked around the roots and thoroughly watered. If the trees are shrunken or dry, a very good plan is to bury them. Dig a trench as wide as the tree is high and about ten inches deep at one end and eighteen at the other and long enough to hold all the trees that are to be buried when they are laid in the trench at a depth not exceeding five or six trees. Place the trees in thee trnch with the roots at the deep end, laying them straight and packing them closely together. When the trees are packed in the trench do not allow them to come above the level of the ground. They should then be covered, root and branch, with twelve or fifteen inches of earth. If the ground is very dry, sufficient water should be slowly thrown over the soil to dampen it, after the trees are buried. In four or five days the trees should out, and should be planted at once, cutting back the tops liberally. The trees when taken out of the trench usually look as plump and fresh as when taken from the nursery, and with ordinary care will never die. There is nothing which injures the prospects of a tree so much as to have the roots exposed to a hot sun or a drying wind. When taking trees to the field for planting, the roots should be protected in every way possible, thus securing the most favorable conditions for growth.—Ex.

Darbys Porphylactic Fluid.

Use it in every sick-room. Will keep the atmosphere pure and wholesome, removing all bad odors from any source. Will destroy all disease germs, infection from al fevers and all contagious diseases.

The Occidental Hotel, under the management of Mr. R. D. Moore and his estimable wife, is growing in popularity every day. +

NEW TO-DAY.

WHY COUGH,

When a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use.

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G.W.Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. Poor Humanity.

The common lot of one is sorrow say—a east—the pessimists, they would look at the worst side. Certainly what would otherwise be a bright existence, is often shade owed by some ailment that overhangs it like a pall, obscuring perpetually the radiance that else would light the path. Such an ailment, and a very common one, is nervousness, or in other words, weakness of the nervous system, a condition only irremediable where in efficient or improper means are taken to relieve it. The concurrent experience of nervous people who have persistently used Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is, that it conquers entirely supersensitiveness of the nerves, as well as diseases—so called—which are invited and sustained by their chronic weakness. As the nerves gain stamina from the great tonic the trouble disappears. Use Bitters for malaria, rheumatism, biliousness and kidney troubles.

A REMONSTRANCE.

A Proposition that Does Not Take With the People of Sonoma Valley.

People all over the county are becoming aroused to the necessity of calling a halt on the Jail proposition, having for its object the sale of the Hall of Records property and the erection of expensive and needless public buildings at the county seat. Here in Sonoma Valley, as stated in last week's issue, the tax-payers are almost a unit against the proposition.

The following protest against the scheme is being circulated in this valley, and before the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors it will contain the names of almost every tax-payer of Sonoma Valley:

"To the honorable, the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county. The undersigned citizens of Sonoma Township do hereby most respectfully protest against and object to the sale of the Hall of Records property."

A Daring Burglar.

Last Sunday night after the family of Mrs. C. Spencer had retired, a daring burglar entered and rummaged the house. He entered the sleeping apartment of Charles Spencer, who, supposing the intruder to be one of the family, paid no attention to him. Other members of the family noticed that the watch dog was raising an unusual commotion but took no cognizance of the matter, supposing a wild animal had attracted the dog's attention. The intrusion was made apparent next morning by the discovery that a quantity of newly cured hams and bacon had disappeared. From the movements of the intruder he must have been well acquainted with the premises.

Death of a Former Resident of Sonoma.

David C. Rupe, at one time a resident of this valley, died in Santa Clara county last Saturday. Deceased was a pioneer resident of Sonoma, and at one time was the owner of Robert Hall's ranch, one of the finest properties in the valley. Mr. Rupe had been ailing for a long time and his death was not entirely unexpected. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters, who reside in San Francisco and Santa Rosa. Deceased was a native of Missouri, aged 63 years. His remains were brought to this place and interred in Mountain Cemetery last Monday, being followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of friends and relatives.

Sonoma Valley Building Stone.

The Commissioners having in charge the erection of the Home for Feeble Minded Children at Glen Ellen will visit Sonoma at an early date to examine the building stone in this valley with a view to using it in constructing the buildings for the Home. Should they conclude to use the Sonoma Valley product thousands of dollars will be saved the State. The building stone of this valley can be cut cheaper than any stone on the the Pacific Coast. It lies embedded in our hills in great quantities and is both handsome and durable.

Colt Races.

The stakes offered by W. P. Fine of Petaluma for a series of colt races to take place in that city this fall has brought forth a goodly number of aspirants for honors on the turf. The entries were 13, 19 and 11 in the yearling, two-year old and three-year old classes respectively, Sonoma being represented in the two former classes by the two fine animals blonging to G. C. P. Sears, El Verano Maid and Cleveland, both sired by the noted stallion Dawn.

Dr. A. Mervy of San Francisco was in town Tuesday.

JUDGE D. O. SHATTUCK.

He Entertains the Daughters of Gen. Vallejo.

Mrs. John B. Frisbie of Mexico, Mrs. Dr. Frisbie of Vallejo, Mrs. R. Emparan and Mrs. A. F. Haraszthy of this place, daughters of the late Gen. M. G. Vallejo, and Miss Lolita Haraszthy, the General's granddaughter, paid a friendly visit to the venerable Judge D. O. Shattuck last Saturday. The Judge received the ladies with that courteous manner so characteristic of the old time Southern gentleman. The visit was mutually pleasant and agreeable and will be an event in the lives of the ladies to be looked back upon and remembered with pleasure. The Judge, who had known General Vallejo for thirty-five or forty years, intends in the near future to take up his pen and urge upon the Legislature of this State the building of a monument to the memory of the General, whom he considers one of California's greatest benefactors. In this he will no doubt receive the co-operation of thousands, who are to-day happy and well-to-do through the liberality of Gen. Vallejo in his prosperous days. Following an old time custom of the Mexican people, the ladies in taking their adieu of Judge Shattuck, took his aged hand in theirs and reverently pressed it to their lips.

The Firemen.

SOME MINISTERS TALES.

GRAVE AND GAY ANECDOTES RELATED BY CHICAGO CLERGYMEN.

The Church Member Who Didn't Recognize Her Own Pastor—The Way the Preacher Found the Waiting Couple—A Sermon on Baptism Interrupted.

"Now and then," said a Methodist preacher from the West Side, "a church communicant is not a living exponent of truth and charity. I found that out in an amusing way some years ago while preaching at a church on the North Side. Rev. Mr. D——, of the Illinois conference, and I had arranged to exchange pulpits on a certain Sunday, and the announcement was made at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting previous. It happened that something came up later in the week which made it necessary to postpone the exchange, and so I appeared in my own pulpit as usual Sunday morning. The attendance was about the same so far as I could see, but a young man, a friend of mine, afterward related to me some comments he heard while the audience was filing out of the church. One woman remarked:

"'Now, that's a splendid sermon. And what a large audience he had. My! if we could only have him here to preach every Sunday. Such a perfectly charming discourse.' You see, she had heard that the exchange would be made and came to church promptly, but she had been absent so long that she really didn't know her own minister when she saw him."

WEDDING SIGNS.

"These stories about weddings," said Rev. J. P. Brushingham, "have a serious side, notwithstanding the fact it is usually overlooked. One time I was engaged to marry a young couple, and when the evening came I found their address had been mislaid. It could not be found high or low. However, I knew within a block of where the place was and resolved I would start out and try and find it. My wife said as I left, in a spirit of raillery at my carelessness, 'You'll know the place by the crape on the door.' And as I went along that remark set me thinking. 'Crape on the door!' Of course a house of mirth to the practical eye is as plainly marked as a house of mourning. The custom is to put on all the tokens of woe when death is a visitor and all the signs of joy when two persons are married. And yet in how many cases the crape had better be shown when weddings occur, and to how many persons death should be welcomed with flowers. You know when Beecher died he requested that no gloom be thrown on the event by sable trappings, but that flowers in profusion should mark his translation to a better land."

"But did you find your waiting couple that night, Mr. Brushingham?"

"Oh, yes. Wedding parties never get lost."

THE ARGUMENT INTERRUPTED.

"This isn't a funny story," said the Baptist minister, "but it is a true one. Before I came to Chicago I was preaching at Lincoln. That was years ago, and the town was not so well supplied with churches as it is now. A Presbyterian minister was holding a revival service in his church, and his audiences were so large he could not accommodate them. He asked the permission of myself and my trustees to use our church, which was much larger, and of course it was granted. His meetings grew larger and larger, and everybody was delighted with the evident good he was doing. One morning he came to me and said he wanted to preach three sermons on baptism, but felt embarrassed, as he was in the house of a denomination from which he radically differed on that subject. I told him to go ahead his own way just as if he were at home. Give them immersion, sprinkling or anything that would save them. So at it he went. Now, right under the platform on which my pulpit stood was a great pool of water in which our own baptisms took place. No one ever thought of the place being insecure, but my Presbyterian friend got a number of brethren on the stand with him that night, and among them was one very fat man—a regular mountain of flesh. The sermon went forward, and the preacher became excited as I never had seen him before. Baptism was his strong point, and he laid himself out for a great effort. He had perhaps reached his loftiest flight in the denunciation of immersion as the 'one baptism,' and announced with great vigor that he had never immersed a convert and he never would; that he never had been immersed and nothing could induce him to be, and that he would sweep the foolish formalism from the face of the earth!

"Just at this point the fat man, too cramped in common chair to enjoy such welcome and powerful doctrine, rose and started across behind the preacher. It was too much for the platform floor. At the very height of the minister's impassioned period down went pulpit, pastor and guard of honor with a crash and a splash into the ample depths of the pool."

"Did it alter his views on baptism?"

"No; but he said Presbyterian preaching on a Baptist platform was a mighty insecure business, and he soon went back to his own house of worship."—Chicago Herald.

Hints for Church Fairs.

Take nine reasonable sized oysters—not too large—to each five gallons of water, and tie them up carefully in a cloth.

If the fair is to continue only three days, cheese cloth will do; but if it holds a week and a large attendance is expected, it is better to use a good, heavy quality of duck, so that the bivalves shall not lose their entire flavor the first few evenings.

The most satisfactory financial results have been obtained from the above, and there is a local legend, pretty well authenticated, which relates that a youth once murmured in an awe stricken whisper, after he had tasted such a mixture: "I think I detect a flavor of oysters!"—Detroit Free Press.

His Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at E. Wegner's drug store as his giving away to his customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. His trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50ct and $1 per bottle at E. Wegner's drug store.

The Union Hotel under the management of C. J. Barta is increasing in popularity every day. *

JENKS' DREAM.

Jenks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighters' ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or tiny Sugar-coated Granules, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow! They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

Beware of Imitations, which contain Poisonous Minerals. Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, which are Little Sugar-coated Pills, or Anti-bilious Granules. One a Dose.

SICK HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. They are gently laxative, or strongly cathartic, according to size of dose. Smallest, Cheapest, Easiest to take. 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of experts, in calibres 32, 38 and 44-100. Single or double action, Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are worthless and dangerous. The SMITH & WESSON REVOLVERS are stamped upon the barrels with firm's name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.

SMITH & WESSON, Springfield, Mass.

FREE One of the BEST Telescopes in the world. Our facilities are unequaled, and to introduce our superior goods we will send FREE to ONE PERSON in each locality, as above. Only those who write to us at once can make sure of the chance. All you have to do in return is to show our goods to those who call—your neighbors and those around you. The beginning of this advertisement shows the small end of the telescope. The following cut gives the appearance of it reduced to about the fiftieth part of its bulk. It is a grand, double size telescope, as large as is easy to carry. We will also show you how you can make from $3 to $10 a day at least, from the start, without experience. Better write at once. We pay all express charges. Address, H. HALLETT & CO., Box 880, PORTLAND, MAINE.

Stanley IS Back

And His Electrified the World

By the announcement of his safe return to civilization His grand work and discoveries have been Grand, Wonderful, Marvelous. The world has seen nothing like them before. His thrilling adventures, marvelous discoveries, daring exploits, astounding privations, wonderful trip across the Dark Continent, How He Found Emin Bey—Everything will be included, from his first entrance into Africa to the present time. Everybody wants the new Genuine Stanley Book!

From Stanley's own writings and dispatches. Over 400 of the grandest and most wonderful New Engravings and Colored Plates ever seen in a book of travels It has been eagerly awaited, and will be more sought after, making more money for the agent and make it easier than any book issued for the past Fifty Years.

CAUTION! Old and unreliable accounts of Stanley's travels are being published. Do not be deceived by old books, rehashes and battered plates We announce this to protect our agents and the public against the numerous worthless so-called Stanley Books, all of which are simply old books that have been in use for years, and are now being offered as new books, with a few pages of new matter added.
